

Studio

In 2024, Maya moved into her 600 m² studio—finally bringing together studio, office, and gallery under one roof. This creative, female-powered space marks the beginning of a new chapter, opening the door to expanded practices, collaborations, and creations.

The studio is shared with Breath of Fire, a yoga clothing brand founded by Maya's mother, Cornelia, and now run by her sister, Pernelle. Also part of the space is Black Out, a Swiss-Lebanese artist who produces his music from his private studio within the space and frequently accompanies Maya during her live performances.

Meet the Team

Maya is supported by a strong female presence across every aspect of the business. Accounting, operations, office management, and creation are all led by a dedicated team of powerful women.
